

Podcast for Review of Disability Studies 7.2

Introduction to the podcast

Megan A. Conway

Aloha, this is Megan Conway, Managing Editor of the Review of Disability Studies: An International Journal. Welcome to our second edition of the “RDS Editor’s Picks Podcast.” This and future podcasts will feature a selection of readings from articles taken from the Review of Disability Studies. In this edition, I will first read my editorial, “Cheater Pants,” which asks the question, “Since when does your disability become less permanent over a period of two months?” Then you will hear from RDS Editorial Assistant, Cherie Luckhurst, who will read an article about perceptions of self-determination in American Samoa and its impact on disability services. I like this article because it describes how important it is for service providers and the people they serve to recognize how cultural differences may shape their goals and expectations. These articles are taken from Volume 7, Issue 2 of RDS. The full text of these articles and others can be downloaded from www.rds.hawaii.edu
